Gambling law changes possible if bill passes

BY TRACI BONNEY House Bill 1597, passed Thursday, could make major changes in the state's gaming laws if approved by the Senate.

The three main changes are 1)that people owning five per-cent or less of a gambling company's stock and people owning property that is leased to a gaming facility would not be required to be licensed by the State Gaming Commission; 2) that gambling vessels would be allowed to dock and operate in man-made harbors or inlets subject to the ebb and flow of the tide or in any navigable waterway in counties bordering on repeated attempts.

the Mississippi River; and 3)that the application fee for a gaming license would be increased from $5,000 to

This last change is one that was also passed in a Senate bill in February.

Other provisions of H.B. 1597 include tax brackets for the gross revenues of gambling operations, and a seven-centsper-square foot fee for gambling operations to lease tidelands.

Rep. J.P. Compretta, who voted for the bill, could not be reached for comment after

Rep. Gene Taylor will be the guest speaker at the dedication of the new Hancock County Human Services Complex this afternoon

Other speakers at the ribbon cutting and open house will include Wallace Bradley, welfare director for the Hancock County Department of Human Services; Darlene Underwood, home economist, and Randy Smith, county agent, for the Hancock County Cooperative Extension Service; and Dr. Robert Travnicek, MPH, for the Mississippi State Department of Health.

Board of Supervisors president Ronald Cuevas will give the welcome, introduce the speakers and make the closing remarks, Board vice president Michael Ladner will lead the Pledge of Allegiance. Conrad Mauffray will sing the National Anthem; Monsignor Gregory Johnson will give the invocation; and the Rev. Van Carpenter will give the benediction.

GUN FIRING ON BUS

Bay-Waveland School District transportation supervisor W.J. Cameron reported Thursday that a juvenile from Bay High School brought a .25 caliber gun aboard a bus Monday and accidentally discharged it while pointing it at the floor of the bus. No one was reported injured.

He probably wanted to show his friends the gun," said Cameron of why the boy may have had the weapon in his possession. Cameron said the boy claimed he thought the safety was in place when the gun discharged.

The youth was one of the four juveniles arrested Tuesday in connection with a spree of burglaries throughout the Bay-Waveland area and the county, Cameron added. He has been tentatively expelled from school until a hearing before the Bay-Waveland School Board determines his status.

He said the gun is believed to be stolen property from one of the homes burglarized.

White trial set for May 6

Kiln resident Travis B. White entered a "not guilty" plea to charges of kidnapping and capital murder Thursday at his arraignment in Circuit Court.

White, 17, was indicted by a January grand jury in connection with the October 28, 1990, shooting death of Leon Howard (Wally) Wallace, 69, who operated a cab service in Hancock County.

Following White's plea, a trial date of May 6 was set. In addition, a motion was granted for a psychiatric evaluation of Still required for college pre-paratory, students are four English units, three math and three science units. The social studies units were increased from 2% to three, and the advanced electives units were increased from one to two.

Dr. Betty Jones, administrative assistant for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland school district, said the new admissions standards are not very different from the higher standards for graduation adopted by the school board in 1990.

The only class not required at this time by the Bay St. Louis-Waveland district is the computer applications course, "The only change the board would have to make in its policy is to add the computer course to the requirements. We will be in compliance with the new state standards before 1995," she

Jones added that she thinks the higher standards will one day be required for all students and not just those in college preparatory curricula.

Terrell Randolph, superintendent of education for the Hancock County school district, said 95 percent of the state's requirements are already in place in the county district.

He explained that the board increased the required number of units from 20 to 22 for the 1991-92 school year in order to strengthen the curriculum.

"This not only keeps us ahead of the state's requirements; it also allows us to expand our elective offerings."

The main changes for the county schools will be to make a computer course a requirement and to add world geography to the advanced elective course offerings, he said.

"We welcome the change. I think the change is going to challenge students even more than in the past. I think the colleges are going in the right direction."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas.

At 2 p.m. today the Hancock County Human Services Complex will be dedicated. The facility is located on Longfellow Drive in front of the Civic Center, near the National Guard Armory.

This long awaited facility, which has been talked about for so many years, suggested by numerous grand juries, wished for so many years by citizens, and begged for by folks such as Wallace Bradley, Welfare director, is a complex all citizens can be very proud of and say it is Hancock County's.

The new facility will house the Health Department, the Cooperative Extension Office, the Welfare Department, the Social Services Department and the Mississippi State Employment Service.

The building was designed and constructed under the watchful eye of Bay St. Louis Architect Michael

I, myself, have been waiting for the ribbon cutting and open house to visit the new facility. I know it sure looks spectacular from the outside.

This is a Hancock County building and everyone is invited to the open house. I am hoping everyone will try to attend.

Remember the time, 2 p.m. today. I hope to see you there.

Hancock County Board of Supervisors heard some good news this week with the re-opening of the Mississippi State Employment Service for two days a week, according to Mike Necaise, Chancery Clerk.

Necaise reports efforts are underway to have the vital facility open five days a week and the supervisors will continue to pursue this endeavor.

The Employment Service will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursdays at the brand new Hancock County Human Services Complex on Longfellow Road in front of the Civic Center.

For some time folks seeking employment had to travel to Biloxi to register, as did employers seeking employees. I am glad that our supervisors were successful in having the Employmnet Service return on a part-time basis because it is a much needed service. I will be looking forward to when it will return on a daily basis.

There are always folks out there looking for some type of a deal and in last Thursday's edition of The Echo. the Public Lands Division, Office of the Secretary of the State in Jackson offered to sell hundreds of parcels of land in Hancock County.

The half page advertisement listed the tax forfeited properties, which are located throughout the entire county. Interested persons are to contact the Public Lands Division for further information.

Thought I would mention the above in case some of you may be interested.

THE THE CAPITOL

PEER committee shows reorganization can save

Our state government represents a multi-billion-dollar-ayear business. The fuel which powers that business is your tax

Because of that, we in state government must make sure that every cent we use is spent wisely and efficiently.

One way that we have made some positive steps to use your tax dollars more prudently is by reorganizing some of the agencies that are a part of our multibillion-dollar-a-year business.

In the past week, proof of those savings have come from a study released by the Joint Legislative Committee on Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review (PEER). Some of the highlights of the report show that, as a result of reorganization:

—The number of state agencies has decreased from 97 to

There is an annual recurring savings of at least

-The reorganized departments showed improved service delivery and reduced costs.

To quote directly from the report, "PEER recognizes that the reorganization process is ongoing and that there is ample opportunity for individual agency heads to implement meaningful changes in administration and service structures that will result in reduced costs and increased efficiency and effectivenss."

The report also listed some examples of where reorganiza-tion has saved money. One of the more striking illustrations was $376,846 saved last year by reorganizing the Children's Rehabilitation Center into University Hospital. At the same time, more patients were treated and fewer staff were required.

Agencies included in reorganization are setting the standard for state government by doing something few other agencies can claim; Reorganized agencies have not requested more money for their budgets while other agencies have requested increases of 30 percent or more. These changes are just the p of the iceberg. Savings would be even greater if the budget process were simplified and reformed to establish clear priorities. The conclusion of the report is undeniable: Reorganization is working, but we can't stop here, we must continue to make Mississippi's state government more streamlined. By doing that, we'll not only save taxpayer dollars, but we'll make our multi-billion-dollar-a-year business run smoothly, effectively and efficiently.

To the Editor

In reply to your editorial on the 28th of February. Yes, Hancock County residents should be ashamed, they should be ashamed of this level of journalism!

Yes, the road needs repair. No, there is no political

The problem, the solution and the time table for repairs have all been discussed in open, public meetings of the Board of Supervisors, which supposedly are covered by reporters from the Echo. This is the second time an article criticizing road conditions in this county has been printed without anyone trying to get the true facts.

I told the editor then, and I repeat now, that I will be glad to answer any questions on roads in the county.

I do not feel that the editorial is a fair representation of the facts and apparently very little, if any, effort was made to find out what the true situation was.

Perhaps if questions were asked to people who have all the information, editorial space would not be wasted, and problems that really need editorial attention could be addressed. Sincerely.

The power of prayer helped guide us to victory

Dear Editor,

Never before in the history of man have we been such a part of a world community as we are

Many of us were sitting at supper when the first guns were fired. We watched via TV, history in the making. We were again at war.

In a world where wrong seems right and the guilty go free, as the innocent are pun-ished, peoples of all nations united in prayer. Our President and world leaders called for prayers; people responded. Each to his own prayer closet, regardless of national origin or color, met in Houses of Prayer and joined in prayer for peace and safety for our warriors.

Let us take a moment to recognize that our Father still hears our prayers: an aggressive campaign by the Allies, where the loss of life and property was so unbelievably low; thousands laying down arms without firing a shot; buildings left intact that could have easily been destroyed.

We have witnessed miracles that even the unbeliever can not Victory celebration to recognize that truly the hand of God was with us, and thanksgiving to our Lord should be on all lips.

He could have easily turned His back on His wayward children, instead He was merciful and loving, hearing our united prayers, and responding. Let us again unite in prayer. Before we return to our daily chore of living in a troubled world, let us send a united 'thank you' to the God who loves us enough to hear our prayers.

Let us not forget lessons learned in the last few weeks. Our flag still flies over a free country and in all parts of the world with respect.

Brothers and sisters, regard-less of color, national origin or religious affiliation can fight side by side for the common good.

Petry differences can be set aside as we walk together for common goals. A world community, caring for one another. Everyone a part, even as just a prayer partner. United prayer is very powerful.

The Lord has taught us a valuable lesson. Let us not easily forget. Join with me in saying. Thank you, Lord."

—For the first time in its history, Bay St. Louis is the proud possessor of a basketball team which is the undisputed champion of the whole South amongst the prep-schools. Not once during the past season did the little St. Stanislaus team come anything near losing a game against prep-schools and went out of its class when it defeated the strong Y.M.C.A., team of New Orleans, which team by the way, is making a runaway race of the senior basketball league in New Orleans. St. Stanislaus was only defeated twice this season, each time by Tulane University of New Orleans, which outweighed our boys by more than thirty pounds to the man. In a changing economy, the words strength and stability take on new meaning Fortunately, these words have played an important part in guiding Hancock Bank through booms, busts, storms, depressions and two world wars. That's why generation after generation of families continue to put their faith and trust in Hancock Bank,

More Strength...

During 1990 when many financial institution's deposits were shrinking and earnings were "flat" or worse, Hancock Holding Company deposits grew by 43%. And, earnings per

Of equal interest, VERIBANC, Inc., an independent survey and rating firm in Massachusetts, twice listed Hancock Bank among the TOP FIFTY (50) SAFEST LARGE BANKS in the United States.

More Resources...

In terms of growth, the three mergers finalized in 1990 are certainly of major consequence.

The first occurred on June 4th, with the purchase of the $100,000,000 Metropolitan National Bank which greatly improved our ability to serve customers in the Biloxi, D'Iberville and Ocean Springs area. On June 15th, our position in Pearl River County was further strengthened with the aquisition of the Poplarville Branch of The Unifirst Bank for Savings resulting in an additional $7,500,000 in deposits.

$350,000,000 American Bank and Trust Company of Baton Rouge, Louisiana from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. The favorable terms of the transaction enabled us to "pick and choose" many of the assets owned by the American Bank. We were able to select acceptable liabilities and adjust rates of interest that were "above the market".

Of all the mergers during the past twenty years, this one by far, has the most favorable opportunities to effect significant "economies of scale", foremost in occupancy expense and data processing. This move also provided us with immediate access to an out-of-state market that is poised for growth.

We were also pleased that we experienced no significant customer loss during any of the mergers.

More Potential...

The fact that we were able to grow and remain strong under the prevailing conditions is due to the support of nearly 150,000 loyal customers and the untiring efforts of our staff and board members. It was your faith and trust that made 1990 a success and we thank you.

Finally, we look forward to 1991 with optimism and enthusiasm remembering that problems are only opportunities in disguise. At the same time, we pledge to you that we will continue to steer a conservative course as we have done

Purim: the story of Queen Esther

By Louis S. Abrams

On the eve of February 28, Jewish people from throughout the world will gather in their synagogues to hear the story of Esther of the Old Testament.

King Ahasuerus was not the rightful heir to be King of Persia. However, he was the wealthiest and most powerful man in the kingdom-a kingdom of 127 captured nations.

To further enhance his power, Ahasuerus married the granddaughter of King Nebuchadnezzer, who destroyed the Holy Temple of Solomon in Jerusalem.

However, because of a decree by King Cyrus of Persia about 550 BCE (before the Christian Era), this Temple was being rebuilt. There was a conditionthe Jews could not rebuilt the fortress walls.

The enemies of the Jews, the Samaritans (unholy Jews unacceptable to the honor of rebuilding the Temple) and the Agigates united in telling untruths to King Ahasuerus that the Jews were building a fortress. The building of the Temple was stopped!

However, the king always regretted this because he sat upon a throne, a copy of King Solomon's. Why a copy?

It seems that King Solomon's throne was one of gold, jewels, and golden animals. There were two animals on each step up to the throne seat-one on each side. As King Solomon mounted the six steps, the animals put out their foot to ease his climb.

However, when King Pharaoh-neche of Egypt took this throne to Egypt, he was knocked off as he tried to reach the seat. He achieved his name, Necheh, meaning lame. The other kings, likewise, were thrown off by the golden animals and were unable to use it. Ahasurerus had his made in Egypt, a close copy. King Ahasurerus moved the capital of Persia from Media to Shushan. In 'celebration, he held a 180-day feast. He also had a feast for all the people of Shushan that lasted seven days. He invited leaders from all 127 countries united as Persia. Jews were among these. However, Mordecai, a fam-ous Jewish leader, asked the Jews to refuse. Some did not and were shocked to see upon the King's table vases from the Holy Temple in Jerusalem.

Haman, our villain, was was to plead before this king for decree had stated responsible for the invitations the Samaritans.

The Jews could to the Jews as he hoped that, by attending, the Jews would eat non-Kosher food; their God would become angry; the Jews would be annihilated! True. God was angry, but not all Jews had attended.

At this famous feast, Ahasucrus bragged about his wife, Vashti, He was persuaded to bring her forth so all could see her beauty. Vashti refused!

Humiliated and angry, he asked the leaders what punish-ment to give. Only Haman spoke up and suggested that Vashti be executed—others thought removing her from her crown, lands, homes, etc. was sufficient. The Bible states the latter as being the punishment carried out. Thus, Persia needed a new queen. All the virgins of Persia were brought to the palace. Esther (Haddasah in Hebrew) was an orphan, the cousin of Mordecai, who raised Esther. She, too, was led before the king.

All these ladies were offered decorations, clothes, makeup—whatever they desired. Esther requested nothing! Her inner beauty shown and Ahasuerus chose her.

Mordecai asked that she keep her Jewish affiliation secret until a time when he felt she would need it to save her people.

It is said that many years before. Mordecai had been chosen to represent the Jews before the court of King Cyrus; Haman Both needed provisions for the long desert trip from Jerusalem to Media. Haman ate all his immediately, but Mordecai rationed his. Haman begged Mordecai to give him food. At first, Mordecai refused.

Then he reconsidered. Mordecai gave food to Haman, but Haman had to write on the bottom of Morde-cai's shoe, (there was no parchment or paper) "I, Haman, the Agagite, have sold myself to Mordecai as his slave in consideration of bread." This humiliation was never forgotten by Haman.

When Haman was appointed prime minister, the king commanded that all bow to Haman. Mordecai refused as Haman wore an idol. When necessary, Mordecai only had to raise his Haman was determined to rid Persia of all Jews. He, thus had two decrees, signed by the king, authorized. One said that a certain people would be massacred on the 13th day of Adar.

The second decree told who these people were—the Jews to be read the 13th day of Adar.

Mordecai had saved the king from poison and was promoted as representative of the Jews at court. Mordecai learning of these decrees, bade his cousin, Esther. to intercede. First, Esther required that for three days all Jews in the kingdom should fast and pray.

Mordecai wore sackcloth and ashes as in mourning. At the end of the three days, Esther went before the king, unbidding—punishable by death if the king did not hold up his scepter. The scepter was raised!

Esther invited the king and Haman to a banquet that day. The king accepted, but Esther would not state her wishes. She invited them to another banquet the next day at which she would tell the king her needs. At the second banquet, Esther told the two men that she was a Jewess: that Haman had issued decrees against her people; and that Haman had constructed a gallow on which to hang Mordecai. The king immediately ordered Haman hung on the gallow!

However, the two decrees had to stand. In order to save her people, a third decree was issued by the king, saying that the Jewish people could stand came forward on the 13th day of Adar, to kill them as the first

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Poor God!

I think he is wrong in all his assumptions about what would happen if it came to war, God forbid."

Those fateful words of U.S. President George Bush came shortly after Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz had refused to accept an eleventh-hour letter from Bush to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The very fact that the letter was never shown to Hussein cast a pall of gloom over the entire world.

For his part, Hussein responded in kind, invoking God's name as readily as Bush did: "Should the Americans become embroiled, we will make them swim in their own blood, God willing."

The most troubling aspect of these and all the war statements being tossed around is that people in the highest places on earth are clothing themselves in the mantle of the highest Person anywhere in heaven or in the universe.

Obviously, they reason, a employed in war, why not go to little God-talk never hurt any one, especially when there is a the Authority from whom there need to soften the agonizing, bloody prospects of war,

Or does it not hurt? Calling on the same God under such conditions smacks strongly of simply using the infinite holiness, truth and justice of God to camouflage whatever ugliness, hypocrisy, greed and injustice there may be in the course of a war. In short, it seems gross, crass, completely repulsive.

Poor God! God is frequently used in an ostensibly pious way by churchgoers who want the deity to see things their way by dovetailing the divine will with their own.

Churchgoing or not, belligerents also try to get God to see things their way, even though their way smacks of the Geneva-Conference-sanctioned butchery of fellow humans in the games of war.

When it comes down to justifying or validating any attitude toward just or unjust war, or any strategy or means to be employed in war, why not go to the top? Why not take refuge in the Authority from whom there is no recourse?

Also, during the prosecution of a war, it helps to call on the deity, thus reassuring everyone that God will help us, not our

One president's designation of a particular Sunday as a day of prayer for peace is countered by the other's constant public poses in attitudes of prayer Muslim-style.

Of course, this war-time Godtalk is nothing new. All people of every century have indulged in the same kind of divine banter. During World War II, most of us here in the United States, strongly convinced of the justice of our cause, key saying, "God of our cause, kept saying, "God is on our side."

Eventually, a poorly educated heavyweight named Joe Louis set the record straight;

"No, we are on God's side!"
The trouble is, both opponents in the war are singing the same tune: "God is on our side!"
To the Iraqis, this means that the conflict is a "gihad," a holy war. The Allied Coalition, on the other hand, refers to it as a

"just war."

For his part, President Bush assured the world that we are walking alongside the cause of God: "The war in the Gulf is not a Christian war, a Jewish war a Christian war, a Jewish war or a Muslim war. It is a just war. Our cause could not be more noble. The first principle of a just war is that it support a just cause."

Curiously, the Iraqis, in keeping with the Muslim tradition, call their western enemies "infidels," an epithet which was first applied by Christians to Muslims in medieval times.

Muslims in medieval times.

Poor God! Epithets and justifications aside, it behooves both belligerents to listen more to God than to try to use God.

Singing praises

Ed Porter spoke first, relating several incidents in which the Porters' faith was tested, including a need for a way to make payments for the group house on time, which was met with an unexpected check for $1,000 in November; and a prayer for increased exposure for the ministry, which was answered with a request that the group appear on ACTS, a Christian television station in Alabama.

Ed said all Christians should rely on and give credit to God for meeting their needs. "With us, with these men, that's the way it is; we're totally dependent on, him."

Ann Porter spoke next, discussing "the other side of the coin," obedience.

She told of an incident where she felt God direct her to do something and she promised to do it, but got busy with others things and forgot about it. The next day in her prayer time, she said she heard the Lord tell her he couldn't hear her because she had not done what she'd been directed to do.

She said she immediately repented of it, and did what she'd been told the day before.

Ann explained that that kind of obedience, coupled with the faith Ed spoke of, is what opens the doors for miracles in a Christian's life. It also is what she and her husband want people to see in their ministry.

She said, "When people come to the Mustard Seed, when they get blessed, it's because the presence of the Lord is there, not because Ed and I are there, but the presence of God. That's what we want people to see, Jesus in us."

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Blue Jeans Garden Club

Nineteen members were present when the Blue Jeans Garden Club met Thursday, Feb. 21 for their regular monthly meeting in Waveland.

President Mayola Rotherham opened the meeting with a special tribute to our troops in the Persian Gulf region, and prayers for their safety and early return.

Minutes of the Jan. 17 meeting were read by secretary Beverly Coogan and approved.

ESERVED.

DIXIE

In the absence of the treasurer, Betty Klein was appointed by Rotherham to give the treasurer's report which was unanimously accepted by the membership.

Following a brief business meeting, canned goods were collected for the Food Pantry. Rotherham thanked the club members for their generosity and continued support of this important project.

Club members Eunice Foret delighted members with a surprise gift, an ample supply of miniature marigold seeds for each attending member.

Half and Half was won by Virginia Thomas, and the door prize winner was Jennie Ortis.

Co-hostesses for the delicious luncheon and afternoon of games following the business meeting were Mary Danna, Joyce Hicks, Dot Feaheny and Mayola Rotherham.

Riverview Club

The February meeting of Riverview Club was at the home of Margie Welsh with 15 members and one guest in attendance. The group welcomed Mary Evans as a new member.

After a short social time, the meeting was opened by Delores Bullitt. The creed and devotional were read. Educational notes were read by Ethel Breaux.

The president gave a report on awards won by the club members at the awards program held Jan. 16.

Riverview Club won three first places, secretary's book, club booth at the Cultural Arts Fair, and club with largest number in attendance. Second place was won for scrapbook.

Delores Bullitt was chosen as outstanding club member of the year. Dot Welsh was presented a white ribbon as third place winner for the doll she dressed for the Salvation Army in Committee chairmen were announced by the president who also noted some changes in the yearbook. A collection was made for the club's project of donating clothes to newborns in the local hospital. It was decided to continue this project during the new year.

The state president's project of giving a book to each newborn baby in Mississippi this year is doing well. It is intended to stimulate reading to babies and also help the literacy program in the future.

The program was presented by Clyde Richardson on the topic "Sign Language for the Deaf."

The next meeting will be April 17 at Diane Loar's home. Club members have planned a trip to the Crosby Arboretum in Picayune that day.

Leukemia Society

Throughout March, more than 7,000 Mississippi volunteers. will be taking steps to cure leukemia.

These volunteers will be going door to door in their own neighborhoods, passing out literature and collecting donations. The goal is $70,000 and the proceeds will be used to fund research, patient services, and public and professional education. The Leukemia Society is trying to find a cure for leukemia. Hodgkin's disease, lymphoma and multiple myeloma. Currently, 200 Society reseachers are working at institutions in the United States and abroad.

The Leukemia Society provides a financial assistance program for patients with payment up to $750 per year each for drugs, lab fees, transportation, and x-ray therapy. In Mississippi, 300 patients are enrolled for this aid.

Persons wanting additional information should contact the Leukemia Society office at 3000 Old Canton Road, Suite 500, Jackson, MS 39216; 601/982-5334

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

So many delicious dishes start with already-cooked meats that it behooves any savvy cook to "buy big" at the meat counters, in order to have planned-overs" on hand for succeeding meals!

And, with special prices on roasts of various sorts at our area supermarkets just now, you may be sure that this frugal cook is all set to take fullest advantage!

For example, one of the best buys in any meat market is the whole pork butt (or Boston Butt or pork shoulder roast, or however you like to identify it). You may cook this whole, using leftovers for subsequent meals; or you may prefer to slice some of the butt into pork steaks (quite as tasty as a bit more costly pork chops) or cut into cubes for kebabs, or strips for stir-fry or as I like to do and serve: whatever. Here's a basic way to until thick. Serve on buns (or hot French bread). (Six Or, just heat the pork up in bottled barbecue sauce if you're feeling super-lazy!

So much for the Boston Butt or other pork roast! I'm also planning to cook one of those low-priced boneless beef chuck roasts and stash some in the freezer for a lazy or busy day. I shall package approximately a cup and a half to two cups of diced leftover roast, and later on make from it:

CHILI BEEF SKILLET 1 medium onion, sliced 1/2 cup chopped celery

2 Tblsp. oil 11/2 cups diced left-over beef

1½ tsp. chili powder
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 can (13 oz.) whole kernel

1 can (15½ oz.) red kidney beans, drained (or left-over fozen beans, or make up this dish a couple of days after you've cooked a pot roast, and also have beans)

1/2 cup sliced, pitted black olives

1/2 tsp. salt 1/4 tsp. pepper 1 cup broken corn chips

Cook the onions and celery in the oil until crisp-tender. Add the beef and chili powder and stir for a minute or so, then add the tomato sauce, corn, beans, olives and seasonings. Simmer, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes. Just before serving, top with the corn chips. (Six servings)

There are other excellent beef buys in the supermarkets this week, from boneless beef chuck roasts and steaks, to boneless shoulder steaks, top round steaks, and sirloins.

Fryer drumsticks and thighs are also offered at their usual good prices, and shank portions are on sale as well.

Fresh broccoli is quite lowpriced, as is lettuce. So are red grapes, red delicious apples and grapefruit, for example.
